Notes of Decisions

Generally 2
Constitutionality 1

1. Constitutionality

Where defendant's conduct on government property impeding and obstructing orderly conduct of government business was not constitutionally protected and would be prohibited under any construction of regulation prohibiting "unseemly or disorderly conduct", application of regulation as construed did not deny defendants fair warning and regulation could be applied to their conduct occurring prior to the construction. U. S. v. Akeson, D.C. Colo. 1968, 290 F. Supp. 212.

Prohibition under phrase "unseemly or disorderly conduct" of conduct on federal property which was intended to and did interfere with, delay, or impede normal and orderly conduct of government business on the property did not offend right to peaceably assemble under U.S.C.A. Const. Amend. 1. Id.

2. Generally

Phrase "unseemly or disorderly conduct" in regulation proscribing such conduct on federal property within jurisdiction of general services administration prohibits conduct on federal property which is intended to and does interfere with, delay, or impede normal and orderly conduct of government business on such federal property. U. S. v. Akeson, D.C. Colo. 1968, 290 F. Supp. 212.
